

The President Says

On October 25, this column said, "The next President will be a great American, and a great people will give him undivided support." To which should be added "The next Governor will be a great Missourian, and a great state will give him undivided support."

For Forrest Donnell will bring to the office a keen mind, a fine character, a loyalty to his state and an understanding of its needs that commands respect even of those who did not vote for him. Missourians can look forward with confidence to four years of sane and progressive leadership.

More Students Are Picked by Designing Class

Selections Are Made by Manner of Dress in Accord With Height.

Students who dress well according to their height have been observed this week by the Costume Design class. The art students report that it is more difficult to find this quality in the dress of their fellow classmates than any other of the qualities upon which they have been judging for the past four weeks.

Tall, medium, and short persons have been considered this week. Thelma Coffman has been selected as the tall girl who dresses best for her height. Miss Coffman has looked especially well in a blue skirt, white sweater, blue plaid skirt, and wide navy blue belt. She has also worn a yellow sweater, black skirt and white blouse. Marjorie Saurbaugh, honorable mention, has also been wearing a plaid dress, which is good for her type.

Robert Taylor, chosen from the tall men, has been wearing a good looking combination consisting of tan sport shirt, tan jacket, and dark brown trousers. A dark suit has been worn recently by Dick Dempsey, honorable mention for the tall men. He also wears a dark brown sweater.

Chosen from the medium height girls are Mildred Hackett and Mary Kyger. Miss Hackett wears sweaters and skirts frequently, a noteworthy combination being a rust sweater, dark brown skirt, and contrasting belt. Miss Kyger, honorable mention, has been wearing a matching jacket and skirt of blue-green plaid. With this costume she wears pumps of black with alligator trim.

Medium height men, named as outstanding are Bob Turner, Dick Stephenson. Mr. Turner has been exercising his ability, as a member of the medium height class, to wear various styles and patterns by wearing both horizontal and vertical stripes. A vertically striped green suit and a two-tone horizontally striped brown sweater were mentioned as being especially well chosen.

Mr. Stephenson, honorable mention, has been wearing a very collegiate blue shirt. He often wears brown and has also been wearing a red plaid shirt.

In the class of short girls, Coleen Hulatt is first and Yvonne Atterbury is honorable mention. Miss Hulatt wears a dark green suit and Miss Atterbury a white shirt, wine jacket, and light blue-green corduroy skirt.

Jack Salmon and Don Moyer have been chosen from the short class for the men. Mr. Salmon has looked especially well in a pearl gray sweater and gray trousers. Mr. Moyer, honorable mention, has been wearing a plaid jacket and gray trousers.

Next week a ballot will be published for the use of the entire student body in the selection of a man and a woman to be the final winners.

New Plane Is Acquired for CAA Pilots

Curtiss "Robin" to Be Used for Study of Plane Parts.

The flight from Kansas City was the last one for a Curtiss "Robin" recently purchased by the College. This ten-year-old plane has been secured for use in the Civilian Pilot Training course. The "Robin" is not to be flown but will be disassembled and the various parts studied by the students as a part of the government requirement for ground school. This division of training is taken in the advanced unit of the course.

The C. P. T. course is offered twice during the school year and once during the summer session. The current program in the beginning unit of the course will be completed by the last of December and the new unit is to start by the first or the middle of January.

To be eligible to apply for training one must be a regularly enrolled student at the College. The basis for final selection of trainees will be upon physical examination, aptitude qualifications, and college credit hour minimums. Students taking the course will receive College credit for it. Upon completion of the course the trainee will be entitled to a private pilot's license.

The total cost of flight and ground school training, with the exception of accident insurance and the physical examination, is borne by the Civil Aeronautics Administration of the Federal Government.

One Who Attended Meeting Reports

Education for National Defense Was Topic for Teachers' Convention.

"That was a splendid session." "I did enjoy that address." Such judgments as these might be heard at the close of any session and at almost any place in the lobbies. It must be rated as an exceptionally strong and satisfactory program that was given this year. Here are some of the impressions which appeal to one listener as being most noteworthy.

In the general sessions, whatever the approach which the individual speakers chose to make, their common theme was Education for National Defense. It was assumed without question that military plans would be formulated by the government whenever it seemed necessary to use force, and that individuals would give to the government the support for which it called. However, no one advocated the suspension of educational programs or the curtailment of school opportunities for children and youth as a means for providing a strong defense for the nation. The emphasis was all in the other direction: carry on your schools by all means and in the face of all contingencies. From the very first general session, when President Lamkin presented the report for the Policy and Plans Committee, this same emphasis came in frequent repetition.

No speaker took time to picture or to list the horrors or the costs of another war. The narrowest escape from this line of presentation came in Mr. Elmer Davis' discussion concerning the possibilities of deep and serious changes in our social and economic ways. He believes that whoever wins this war and whether the United States participates directly or not, the general effects of the struggle will be felt very keenly throughout the world even in America. But Mr. Davis preserved a sane attitude and avoided emotionalism.

Stress Worth of Individual To the schools, the speakers agreed, fell the task of perpetuating the democratic way of life. No speaker seemed satisfied to have guarantees merely for forms and institutions. They all wanted, and some emphasized the demand for, those mutual relations which grow out of a sincere conviction as to the intrinsic worth of the individual. The active prosecution of any war endangers that fundamental element in our American heritage. The heritage itself must be preserved, and it requires education to fulfill the task.

Model House Display Is on Second Floor

A model of "Haddon Hall" has been placed in the display case on second floor and is to remain there during next week. This scale model is the largest of twenty-five included in a loan exhibit from the Museum Extension Project located in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. This museum work is carried on under the auspices of the Works Progress Administration by artists who could not secure private employment.

"Haddon Hall" is a famous old mansion thirty miles from Manchester, England.

O'Neillians Will Give Six Plays for Year

Dramatic Club Considers Julius Caesar for First Production.

Six short plays will be produced by the O'Neillian dramatic club and presented on the College stage when the remodeling of the auditorium is completed, according to an announcement made this week. The club has been rehearsing the plays for several weeks.

The O'Neillians are considering a major production for this year, but no play has as yet been selected. Julius Caesar and You Can't Take It With You are under consideration at the present time, and one of the two will be presented some time within the months to come. The major play will be announced as soon as a selection has been made.

The O'Neillians are also busy preparing new scenery for use in the various productions they are planning for this year. Material for the new scenery arrived several days ago.

Teachers' Meet Interests Many Faculty Members

One of the faculty members who attended the Teachers' Meeting in Kansas City reports a very interesting meeting. He says he especially enjoyed the last two lectures on Friday evening. These were given by Dr. Compton of the University of Chicago and Mr. Morrison, Editor of the Christian Century Magazine.

He also mentioned an interesting gathering of Maryville persons at dinner Friday evening at the Business and Professional Women's Club. It seems as though one has to go a long way in order to have dinner with one's daily associates and really get acquainted with them.

Miss Dykes said that she was impressed by the statement "the College is the faculty," made by at least three speakers that she heard. One speaker, she said, gave an interesting definition of an educated man. The educated man must be able to speak, read, and write, with fluency, ability, and logic.

Miss Olive DeLuce, chairman of the Fine Arts Department, spoke at the Art section on the program of the National Education Association. Miss DeLuce is president of the art division of the N. E. A.

Miss DeLuce attended the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College dinner and the meeting of the House of Delegates on Wednesday.

The importance of National preparedness was emphasized in all the general sessions, Miss DeLuce said.

Dr. Blanche Dow, chairman of the Foreign Language Department, spoke at the English breakfast and attended the Modern Language Luncheon and meeting.

Bookbinding Project Repairs 7,000 Books

30 Nodaway County Girls Are Employed; Mrs. Egan Supervises Work.

A year ago a project was started in Maryville for the express purpose of repairing damaged books from the libraries of Nodaway County and its vicinity. During the year approximately seven thousand books have been bound.

This project, the only one of its kind until the recent establishment of a similar one in St. Joseph, is under the very able supervision of Mrs. Irene Egan, of Conception Junction.

The only cost to the libraries for the service rendered by thirty Nodaway County girls, under the auspices of the National Youth Administration, is the furnishing of the necessary materials. After the damaged books have been torn apart a sewing rack is used to sew the signatures together.

Since November, 1939, girls between the ages of seventeen and twenty-four years, single, and unemployed have been given an opportunity to learn the art of bookbinding and to receive a reasonable sum of money at the same time. During this year many of them have secured private employment and have been replaced by other Nodaway County girls. The girls receive the standard rate of twenty-four cents per hour for sixty-four hours a month.

The project was originally located on the balcony in the old east library but has recently been transferred to the room on second floor which was formerly occupied by the College bookstore. Harold Stanton and Don Garish of St. Joseph are field supervisor and field interviewer, respectively. Charles A. Nelswenger of Chillicothe is area director for the project.

"M" Club Gives Dance Tonight

Students Will Dance from 9:00 Till 12:00; Sports Is Theme of Evening.

The "M" Club is sponsoring an all school dance tonight from 9:00 until 12:00. Music will be furnished by the College dance band. Larry Loos is the chairman of the arrangements for the dance.

The decorations are to be built around a sports theme, according to Robert Turner, chairman of the decorations committee. Footballs, basketballs, track shoes, and other sports symbols will be arranged around the room with a huge welcome sign at the entrance.

Faculty guests who have been invited are: Ryland Milner, E. A. Davis, and W. N. Stalcup.

Faculty Reception Is Freshman High Light

One of the high-lights of the social season of the fall quarter took place last Wednesday night, November 13, when the faculty members entertained the Freshman class at a formal reception. The faculty received the students socially from 8:00 until 10:00 at Residence Hall.

Pink chrysanthemums formed the centerpiece of the table from which refreshments of coffee and cake were served. Pouring for the first hour were Mrs. Reven S. DeJarnette and Mrs. Robert Main; for the second hour Mrs. R. T. Hubble and Mrs. Lon Wilson. All four of these women are wives of faculty members.

President and Mrs. Uel W. Lamkin, Dean and Mrs. J. W. Jones, Miss Marian Lippitt and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Cooper formed the receiving line.

General plans for the reception were made by the Student Affairs Committee, which is headed by Miss Marian Lippitt. Other members of the committee are: Dr. J. W. Hake, Miss Miriam Waggoner, Mr. Norvel Bayler, Mr. A. H. Cooper, Miss Jacinta Kampmeyer and Mr. Wilbur Staloup.

The committees were composed of faculty and staff members, and faculty wives.

Henry Turner, who was graduated from the College in 1939, has been appointed an instructor in history and political science at the Wentworth Military Academy, Lexington. He began his new duties at the Academy last week.

Mr. H. Canfield Cook presented the inside story of one of America's frontiers, Aviation. His fascinating description of this industry was told by word and picture to all who attended the lecture, "America Flies," in Horace Mann Auditorium, Wednesday, November 13, at 10 or at 11 o'clock.

Mr. Cook brought with him a vivid natural color film to give full expression of this vast field open to exploration and development by the Youth of this country.

Mr. Cook, an American citizen by naturalization, saw active service in Britain's Royal Air Force during the last world war. He was one of the youngest commissioned flying officers and has since been awarded several honors in aviation, among them an invitation to become a member of the Royal Aero Club of Great Britain and the National Aeronautics Association. Since that time his interest in aviation has developed more extensively in the field of transportation in America.

His travels have taken him to many foreign countries where he has studied conditions and gathered facts for his lecture on aviation in the world of today. He has flown the air routes of the United States and those of foreign countries. Information on the latest developments in aviation, both in America and in Europe are readily accessible to him. Mr. Cook knows his subject.

Not only did Mr. Cook tell of the preparations behind the flight of huge transcontinental Stratoliners, one of which is the new 33-passenger Boeing—the world's first "altitude conditioned" transport, but he also gave a detailed description of the carrying of mail and express across America. His film depicted many interesting stories of the construction of airplanes and the mechanical devices used in every flight made, no matter what the type of plane may be.

His was the story behind the scenes of the selection of the personnel of transportation companies—the pilot who guides many thousands of passengers every year to their destination safely and swiftly, and the hostesses who are so essential to the comfort of those who travel for business and those who ride for pleasure.

President Lamkin Speaks at Meeting

The Northwest Missouri State Teachers College "get-together" was held November 8, at the Business and Professional Women's Club in Kansas City. Over a hundred former students and faculty members attended the banquet. Several graduates of more than twenty years ago were present. Mrs. Jewel Ross Davis, of Central Teachers College, Warrensburg, Mo., was a guest.

Mr. Colbert, of the mathematics department gave the invocation, which was followed by group singing. One of the songs was a revived song of several years ago—"I'd rather belong to S. T. C. Than 'Any Old School I Know'." Mr. Virgil Woodside, of the class of 1939, sang two solos, accompanied by his sister, Miss Alice Woodside, who was a graduate of the College last spring. President Uel W. Lamkin then spoke to the gathering and the program ended with singing of the Alma Mater.

The programs were designed by R. Claire Sloniker, who last attended the College in 1925. The cover design was a reproduction of the birches and bench done in college green.

YEA, CHEER LEADERS

The Cheer Leaders, and the Student Senate that is backing them, are to be complimented very highly for the organized pep rally that was held all day Thursday. Of course it was just a little late in the season, but basket ball is still yet to come. More of this kind of demonstration in the future will not only create greater school spirit, but it will increase the number of victories in college interscholastic competitions.

Lead on, Cheer Leaders! The students are behind you!

From the Dean

Let Us Be Thankful as Students:

- For the opportunities that are ours;
- For the responsibilities that we face courageously;
- For the friends we have, and the friend we can be;
- For the services we can render to others;
- For the privilege to justify in our lives this college.

—J. W. Jones

Ten Years Ago at STC Campus

The campus was started by the murder of Edward Wales, prominent College student, who was stabbed in the back during a local spiritualistic seance. The mystery was not solved until Detective Tim Donahue, sleuth of "The Thirteenth Chair", tracked down the criminal in a thrilling manhunt on the College stage.

The Residence Hall girls gave a program dance, November 8 at Residence Hall. Ted Breddlove's orchestra furnished the music.

Among the chaperones at the dance were Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Dieterich. Members of the dance committee were Pauline Walker, Nettie Price, Grace Gallatin, and Margaret Sutton.

Dr. O. Myking Mehus, social science instructor at the College, gave an Armistice Day address to the Parent-Teacher Association of Maryville High School.

The class queens for this year's Tower were selected by the various classes this week. Ruby Doak was elected one five rivals in the Senior class, and Minnie Evans, of Maryville won the junior crown. Lois McQuary was the Freshman Queen. The Sophomore queen was not selected.

Members of the faculty who saw service in the World War had a get-together dinner at Residence Hall at 6:30 Monday evening. Fifty-four faculty members and their wives attended the dinner.

MODEL HOUSE DISPLAY IS ON SECOND FLOOR

chester. It is a well known show place today.

Two Indian dwellings are also in the exhibit. The tipi, or tepee, a conical tent made by stretching skins of animals over a frame-work of poles; was used by the Plains Indians. The pueblo was used by the tribes in the southwestern part of the United States. This typical pueblo consists of one flat-roofed house built above the other, terrace style. It is a warm yellow-tan in color. An interesting model is the reproduction of the John Adams house, a Cape Cod cottage at Quinsey, Massachusetts. This house was built in 1681 and is of the "salt box" type, meaning that the front is two stories in height and the back one story.

The Graeme Park house, erected in 1721 for a colonial governor, is located near Philadelphia. It is of reddish stone and is interesting because of its numerous, many-paned windows.

"Woodlands", a late Georgian style house constructed of stone with wooden trim, is also near Philadelphia. The facade of this home is an example of perfect formal balance.

Curved stairways lead from either side to the front entrance of the Davenport house, a red brick Georgian town house built in Savannah, Georgia, in 1800.

General Washington chose the vari-colored stone-Potts house for his headquarters during his stay at Valley Forge. White shutters add to the attractiveness of this representative of the smaller farmhouses of southeastern Pennsylvania.

Viewmont house at Carters' Bridge, a house built of wood, has as its chief claim to beauty, the excellent balance evident on the four sides of the structure.

The modern house is one of the most attractive models in the exhibit. In the functional style, its beauty lies in straight lines and good proportions, sans elaborate decoration. This modernistic dwelling, ivory in color, boasts a flat roof, balconies, venetian blinds, a terrace, and a roof garden. Simplicity is the keynote in the planting of the shrubbery and of the pool on the terrace.

"Haddon Hall" is the largest model in the exhibit; the African hut is the smallest. This tiny circular dwelling has a thatched roof and but one opening. The Egyptian, as does the modern house, has a flat roof. The only means of reaching the roof is by an exterior stairway. The monotony of the tan color is broken up by colorful Egyptian characters around the door and a band of decoration around the house, directly beneath the overhang of the roof.

The West Asiatic type, from the Armenian section, has an open gallery supported by wooden pillars,

An unofficial committee was appointed to submit a resolution to be published in the Northwest Missourian for Friday.

Censored motion Number 2 was discussed. This motion concerned plans for a surprise feature to be presented at the football game this afternoon.

Take It From Me

Since this is the first appearance of my column, perhaps I should explain its purpose, and the aims I have in writing it. I have no axes to grind, literally or figuratively, and my whole purpose is to amuse, where possible to entertain, and occasionally, to inform the students in this college of things collegiate on this and other campuses. So, lads and lasses, here goes.

Missouri college students who take a yen for the great outdoors might do well to petition the heads of their respective schools to follow the lead of Lees-McRae College, Banner Elk, North Carolina— if an Associated Press story can be believed. The college has added a course in "possum hunting (yes, you heard me) to its curriculum, and students now gallop merrily over hill and dale to the music of baying hounds in pursuit of Brer "Possum"—and some much needed college credit.

The college referred to above hasn't got around to conferring the degree of Doctor of Possum upon anyone yet, but the course is required as part of the physical education program. That sounds like a bit of Missouriana that we could use right here, but on second thought maybe it wouldn't be so good either. Who wants to chase after brer possum in weather like this?

Freshmen in this college might take a hint from a certain Michigan University freshman and be a little more enthusiastic in their support of the home team. The Michigan freshe, who was confined to the hospital, fled from the student infirmary and perched for an hour and a half on a transformer atop a neighboring power plant, defying police and firemen to come and get him all the while. The reason—he wanted to go to a football game.

Of course, we don't mean to imply that our freshmen are expected to perch on any transformers in forty degree cold—minus everything except a nightgown—to demonstrate their loyalty to the old Alma Mater. After all, there are some limits, even to patriotism. But let's see you all out for the game tonight, and help those "Cats to win.

And that ends the column for this week. See you at the game tonight.

The First Snowfall

When I awoke this morning I was confronted with the usual Monday-morning situation. The most difficult portion of this situation always seems to be the hour between six and seven o'clock. In that hour I decide either to get up and do systematically about my daily routine or to sleep fifteen (or maybe thirty) minutes longer, thus throwing a stone in the machinery of the daily grind.

The Stroller...

The Stroller is once again in high spirits. Upon coming back from a busy week-end at Kirksville, she finds that C. F. Lyddon once again has taken up his nightly vigil at Residence Hall. Lyddon evidently believes in the old adage, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

But going back to Kirksville, the Stroller was a bit worried about Mr. Geiger just before the end of the first half. When it came time to line up his hand, he discovered that somewhere in the excitement he had mislaid his many diagram sheets and was at a loss as to what to do. But, as a matter of habit, one of his able assistants came through with the sheets and the show was able to go on in perfect form.

During the week-ends of this quarter, the college campus has been conspicuous with the tireless figure of Edgar Boner (Mr. W. T. Garrett's right hand man) moving back and forth from the Administration building to his home on Third Street. The Stroller is inclined to think Edgar's Laboratory work is hindering his week-end social life. Remember Edgar, "All work and no play made Jack a dull boy."

One of the Stroller's deepest regrets is that business activities didn't necessitate his visiting the Office of the Director of Personnel for Women last Thursday or Friday while attractive Aileen White was acting Director of Personnel for Women.

The National Guard should hold their regular meetings in Residence Hall and not take away their men so abruptly who are attempting at this late hour to make up for valuable time and dates lost the past year or two.

Don't try to tell the Stroller that Frank Strong doesn't get dividends from his dates. The reward from having dated Mary F. Todd for the Kirksville game came in the form of a "lovely autographed" picture of Mary sent by mail in care of the Phi Sig House.

Did you know that the Stroller went to Kansas City last week-end? Yes, sir! It wouldn't be quite fair to mention any names, but one of the faculty members can tell you that there were some very interesting shows in town. The cub reporter said to the Stroller, "Just one faculty member?"

The Stroller is all cocky this week—and well he may be. Here he has been thinking he was writing only for student consumption and suddenly one of the high flying faculty (literally—no insinuation meant) slips into the staff room trying to find out what the Stroller meant by one of his last week's jokes. Isn't that something to Crowe about? And now the Stroller wonders why Don Johnson is also starting research on the matter.

The Stroller's deepest regrets go out to Betty Smalley. The more experienced girls should have warned her not to place too much hope for a certain date last Sunday night. Experience is a bitter teacher but a positive cure.

A thought for the week: If Warrensburg comes and takes over Maryville as Maryville took over Kirksville, WOW!

Coach Long's team will meet Fairfax on Thanksgiving Day to determine the second place position in the 275 league.

Priscilla Ann Feagans spent the week-end, November 8-10, at the home of Mrs. W. C. Maier at Mound City.

Mr. Phillips Speaks to ACE on Child Personality

"Developing the Personality of the Child" was the topic which Mr. Homer T. Phillips presented in a lecture to the A. C. E. members last Tuesday, November 12, at the Horace Mann building.

Mr. Phillips pointed out that the child is a very active person; therefore it is the teacher's responsibility to provide for a normal outlet of energy through worthwhile activities. The teacher who provides these is an artist, and not the ordinary teacher.

He also remarked that as each child has tendencies toward success, it should be seen that every child has his small successes; for the child will seek them elsewhere and it is better that he receive them in the home or in the school.

Mr. Phillips continued by telling the group that there were three types of children: normal type, quiet type, and the bully. Two major tasks of the teacher were given as, knowing boys and girls totally, that is mentally, physically, socially and their home life. The second task of the teacher is to develop to the highest degree, the potential qualities of the child. This is a big step toward the future happiness and success of the child.

The Machine Age is destroying our customs. The traditions that have been handed down from generation to generation are being gradually abandoned. The arts and crafts are rapidly disappearing as have the folk customs. According to Miss Keith we should do what we can in attempting to prevent the loss of color from our social heritage.

Kurby Bovard Will Wed Miss Florence Creamer

The marriage of Miss Florence Creamer, Augusta, Alabama, to Kurby Bovard, Jr., Maryville, an alumnus of the College, will take place tomorrow.

Mr. Bovard's mother and sister, Mrs. Oliver Bovard and Mary Ann Bovard, will attend the wedding. They have been visiting in Birmingham the past week before going to Augusta.

While Mr. Bovard was in College he was president of the Senior class of 1935, sports editor of the Northwest Missourian, and active in the student senate, the Growlers, basketball, and dramatics.

Social Science Club Hears Miss Keith

Miss Mary E. Keith spoke to the Social Science Club Tuesday evening. With her wide experience of travel, she told the group of the different social customs among the various foreign people whom she had seen. She stated that in Canada the people in Quebec are largely French, practice French customs, and speak the French language. The people of Ontario are largely English and live almost as we do. The Mexicans, our neighbors to the south, are for the most part a poor uneducated, mixed racial group of people. They practice a combination of Spanish and native Indian customs. In both cases there is a great difference in our customs and the customs of our neighbors.

The Europeans are very courteous and polite according to Miss Keith. They are not slaves to the clock as we are. The Europeans move rather slowly and take life easy, whereas we Americans are constantly in a hurry. She believes that this attitude of some European peoples was largely responsible for their defeat in this present war.

Even though we do not approve of the customs of other people, we should respect them. Customs, traditions, religious ceremonies, festivals, manners, and other practices should not be judged as right or wrong by outsiders, but as something to be held in reverence. Many Americans, while traveling in Europe have not done this. As a result it has created an ill feeling towards us. A sensible traveler will practice the customs of the country that he is in and temporarily abandon those of his own that are in marked contrast to this country.

The Machine Age is destroying our customs. The traditions that have been handed down from generation to generation are being gradually abandoned. The arts and crafts are rapidly disappearing as have the folk customs. According to Miss Keith we should do what we can in attempting to prevent the loss of color from our social heritage.

get up, dress, and prepare breakfast. Maybe all this unusual Monday-morning activity accounts for my not having noticed the weather conditions. Anyway, when my roommate came down to breakfast some time later (she always comes to breakfast later than I—she believes in getting her beauty sleep and I—well, we needn't go into that!) I was still lingering over my coffee, somewhat amazed at the oversupply of time I had. Then suddenly she brought me out of the daze with, "Did you know it's snowing?"

I ceased pretending that I was Lady Leisure (or someone just as luxuriously idle), got into my coat and mittens, and started to class. The first snowfall had always been a sensation to me—had been until I read what Woodworth said about a sensation. According to Mr. Woodworth, a snowstorm must have existed being a sensation to me about eighteen years ago. Well, you will understand if I say the first snowfall gives me the thrilling thought that I am standing before one of Nature's Masterpieces, possessing only a meager knowledge of art and a limited vocabulary with which to praise her handiwork.

Once outside, the wind beat upon my face with a resentful sting as though I were an intruder in this velvety white garden. The way the dainty flakes were being tossed and blown about was shameful. The wind swept them away and piled them in little drifts. Then, as with a change of mood, it whirled them up in the air and let them fall as they would.

As I walked, or rather slid, down the walk I could see many of my colleagues struggling against the force of the wind. Perhaps they, too, wanted just one breath with which to praise the delicate little white flakes caught in their fur collars and on their coat sleeves. Perhaps they wanted only a moment before the wind whirled inournfully and snatched the precious flakes and tossed them away again.

The wind continued its howling and the snow fell faster and faster, as if it would outstrip the wind, outnumber the wind, and, perhaps drive it, from the campus. The trees and bushes, bent over by its force, seemed to be shielding the snowdrifts and protecting them from its fury.

Now, quite suddenly, everything seems calm and quiet. The wind has ceased its mournful wailing and an infinite calm hovers over the campus. The wind left no traces of "pearl" or "ermine" on the twigs and branches of the trees, but the earth is glistening in its new coat studded with precious jewels. As the sun sinks behind the trees in College Park, I think, as I do every fall, "This has been the most beautiful 'first snowfall' I've ever seen."

ers from first to last recognized the close relationship existing between the democratic way of life and the vitality and activity of those religious forces which have permeated our national life through the past generations. One gathered that the speakers would call for the aid of the churches, not as a means to winning a war, but as the source from which a spirit of fellowship and devotion to the common good may be widely and effectively engendered. On the platform Friday evening were Dr. Arthur Holly Compton and Dr. C. C. Morrison, the one a physicist of well-recognized ability, the other the editor of an undenominational weekly. On two points they agreed completely:

Religion Is Emphasized

What we defend in our national defense is the democracy which characterizes our national life. Necessary to such a task of defense is the religious way of living and thinking. Dr. Morrison detects in our rigid exclusion from our schools of all religious instruction a condition which leaves our graduates with the impression that American life is secure without any attention being given to religious instruction. He cannot see how the churches and homes can ever recover for our people the vital spiritual factor of life in such a brief time as is available to them and with the complete secularization of our schools. Here is the place at which he went at least two steps beyond all other speakers in this direction. First, he would have some qualified persons outline a series of lessons adapted to the development of religious thinking and living, at each of the various school levels, but distinctly and fairly non-sectarian in content. Second, he would have such non-sectarian instruction introduced into all of our schools, putting this material on a level with any other subject matter in its relevance and importance as a factor in our American heritage.

One discovers that at the present time British religious leaders are taking active measures to relate Christian idealism and motivation to the requirements of a most exacting situation. With it all, they are trying to prevent that deadening effect illustrated in Russia, Germany, and elsewhere, where the state has drafted religion as a subservient agency slaving for military and political success. With this policy being pursued in British religious circles agree fully the general convictions expressed last week at Kansas City.

Mr. and Mrs. Bacon Are Entertained

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bacon, the pianist and the cellist who have been presented in concerts on the campus the past week, were honor guests at an informal reception given by Dr. and Mrs. Reven S. DeJarnette, Monday evening.

The reception was given at the DeJarnette home at 335 East Fourth Street, from 8:45 until 10:30. Mrs. DeJarnette was assisted by Dr. Blanche Dow, chairman of the assembly and entertainment committee, and the Misses Janet Leeder, and Jacinta Kampmeier, members of the music faculty.

The reception was given in order that the townspeople, faculty members, and students might visit and become acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. Bacon.

The group was entertained during the evening by a string trio formed of Mr. and Mrs. Bacon, and Miss Kampmeier. The trio played several movements from Beethoven's trios.

Mr. and Mrs. DeJarnette also gave a small dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Bacon, Tuesday evening. President and Mr. and Mrs. W. Lankin, and Dr. Blanche Dow were additional guests.

Bearcats Play Last Game of Season Today

Eight Seniors Close Career

SECOND PLACE IS STAKE

Warrensburg Has Heaviest Club in Conference; Tied for Second.

Eight Maryville gridders end their college football careers in the game against Warrensburg, the last game of the season, today. Second place in the conference is at stake today, for both teams are tied in conference play.

Warrensburg has the heaviest ball club in the conference and a big fast backfield operating behind a fast charging line. Last week they fell before the new conference champions, Springfield. The score was 13 to 0. Among the Mules' stars are Keith Gooch, one of the best passers and kickers in the conference, "Hoot" Gibson, and Appleman, a dangerous left hand passer.

Snow and cold has hampered Bearcat practice this week. For the first time Maryville is entering a game in almost full strength, having come out of the Kirksville game with no injuries.

In conference games both Maryville and Warrensburg have lost to Springfield, by identical scores, 13 to 0. Both teams have defeated Cape Girardeau, Maryville winning 18 to 0, and Warrensburg winning 13 to 0. Maryville was defeated by Rolla 26 to 0, but Warrensburg squeezed out a 7 to 6 victory over Rolla. Warrensburg was upset by Kirksville 10 to 7 and the Bearcats easily downed Kirksville 20 to 0.

Coach Milner stated, "Warrensburg has a big team and is always a tough ball club."

The eight seniors on the Maryville squad who will be playing their last game today, are Joe Kurtright, Ralph Kurtright, Dean Walker, Harold Hull, Wallace Hicks, Larry Loos, Glenn Breckenridge, and Andrew Kruse. Kruse will not be in uniform today because of injuries.

Former Students Have Coached an Undefeated Team

Coaches Carol Russell and Donald "Bo" Sipes Lead Trenton Undefeated.

Football mentors have their ups and downs, their good years and their bad years. Some, however, are more fortunate in having a supply of good men each year, and with able supervision often enjoy a succession of good years in athletic campaigns. Such has been the case of Coaches Carol Russell, Class of 1931, and Donald "Bo" Sipes, Class of 1938, who shape the "football destinies" of Trenton High School.

Word has been received that Coach Russell and his able assistant, Coach Sipes have led their charges through one of the most brilliant seasons in the history of Trenton High School. The stellar aggregation of Bulldogs climaxed an undefeated season on Armistice Day, by trouncing Chillicothe to the tune of 40 to 0. They won the North Missouri Conference, disposing of four conference teams by one-sided scores. Going outside their conference, they crushed St. Joseph Central and defeated a strong St. Joseph Benton team by the score of 7 to 0.

The Bulldogs boast of one of the most versatile backs in high schools in the state in Jim Austin.

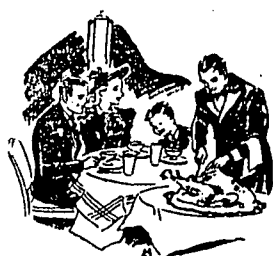

Perhaps one good season is no cause for hilarity, but Coach Russell and Coach Sipes, who starred in athletics while in Maryville State Teachers' College, seem to have a habit of turning out good teams at Trenton, both in the high school and Junior College, and in basketball as well as football. We are pleased to hear of their success which can measurably be attributed to their abilities as mentors.

Mrs. Main Shows Zeal for Archery

Mrs. Margaret Main, who is enrolled as a student of the College and is the wife of Mr. Robert Main of the College Speech Department, has a national ranking of third place as an archer. This recognition is given by the American Archery Association in a contest given every year for junior college women. Each contestant is scored at his or her home school. The scores are sent to a central point to be tallied.

Being able to hit the bull's eye is too simple for this contest. Instead the advanced art of hunting archery is used. The target takes the form of an animal on which a certain spot is marked. The target is moved into sight. The object is to shoot quickly and hit the marked spot. Thus excitement is added to the sport.

Another type is called moving target archery. In this type balloons are often used. Clout shooting also comes under this head. If it all becomes too simple, the art of hitting the target when both the target and the archer are moving may be substituted.

Bearcats Win Again; Defeat Bulldogs 20-0

Reserve Squad Makes Striking Showing in Fourth Quarter.

With Joe Kurtright leading a smooth passing and running attack, Maryville proved too strong for the Kirksville eleven, November 8. Maryville bowled over the lighter Bulldog team 20 to 0 in a conference game that featured Kurtright's 54 yard touchdown run.

Maryville wasted little time in scoring, when Kurtright fumbled shortly after the kickoff and Maryville recovered. Joe Kurtright tossed a pass to Walker and then a touchdown pass to Schottel. Ralph Kurtright's try for extra point was blocked, but Breckenridge picked up the free ball and scored the extra point.

Midway in the second quarter Roodhouse's kick rolled out on the 20. Maryville picked up a first down, and Kurtright passed to Schottel for 15 yards. Paxson lateraled to Kurtright, who shook off numerous tacklers and raced 54 yards for a touchdown. His brother Ralph's try for extra point was good. Kirksville elected to kick. Paxson took the kick on his own 10 and scampered to the 46, before he was finally downed. The Bulldog line held and Maryville was forced to kick.

Shortly after the second half began, Roodhouse's punt bounced out on his own 40. Paxson picked up four yards, and Darr skirted left end for 10 yards. Joe Kurtright, on a face, cut through center for 24 yards to the two yard marker. Paxson picked up one yard, and Schottel crashed over for the touchdown. Kurtright's try for extra point was no good. Maryville kicked off and Lane returned the kick to the 27. A pass from Roodhouse to Lane netted 15 yards, but Griffith halted Roodhouse for a 12 yard loss on the next play. Loos intercepted Roodhouse's pass on the Bulldog 40 and was finally downed on the 21. A 15-yard penalty against Maryville nullified the threat.

Coach Milner sent in the reserves in the fourth quarter and to add humiliation to Kirksville's defeat, they twice threatened to score. With Sanders and Padilla doing the ball-carrying and the Sanders-to-Meyers passing attack clicking, the Bearcats marched up the field, only to be stopped when Sanders tossed an eight yard pass to Meyers that was short of a first down on the two yard line. Kirksville kicked out of danger and after an exchange of kicks, the Bearcats began another touchdown drive, ending with Joe Kurtright's fourth down line plunge which left the ball almost on the goal. Kirksville gained five yards on a pass and Maryville was penalized 15 yards for clipping as the game ended.

The passing and running of Joe Kurtright was the feature of the game, as the Bulldogs could do little to stop the savage Bearcat attack and could not get their own attack going. The line play of Ross Griffith was also outstanding, but the Bob Miller, official at the Maryville-Cape Girardeau game, had to be in Kansas City at 11:45 to catch a plane for Norman, Oklahoma, where he was to act as an official at the Oklahoma-Nebraska game. In a private plane which he had waiting for him in case he missed the air liner, he left Maryville after the game, not bothering to change his clothes. According to the box-score of the Oklahoma-Nebraska game, he arrived on time.

Charles Larson, star Culver-Stockton back who played good football against Maryville a few weeks ago, ended his college football career by scoring 31 points against William Jewell last week. He is one of the leading scorers in the nation, having scored 87 points.

Frank Nobel, Kirksville end and brother of Kirksville's line coach, kicked a 53 yard field goal against Warrensburg. The ball was resting on the 33. Nobel dropped back in kicking formation ten yards behind the line of scrimmage. Since the uprights are ten yards behind the goal, the kick traveled 63 yards in all. He was also kicking into the Springfield has clinched the conference crown, making it the conference champ for the first time. Springfield is still one of the unbeaten and untied teams in the nation and has scored 173 points against its opponents' 7, which were scored by Rolla.

A member of the Cape coaching staff stated during the recent Bearcat-Indian game that Maryville had the best line-backers in the conference in fullback Ivan Schottel and center Larry Loos. A Warrensburg scout claims 195 pound Schottel is the best blocking back in the conference.

Errors proved costly to the Cape eleven. They made only three fumbles, but all three were recovered by Maryville. To add insult to injury, Maryville scored as the result of each fumble.

The camera focused on Joe Kurtright, as he rambled 54 yards to score against Kirksville, tossed a touchdown pass to Ivan Schottel, and made a 25-yard run that placed the ball on the two-yard line and led to the other touchdown.
